Well, well, good soul—no matter—
it is all the same to me;

False the window just a liftle—
I can hardly breathe, you see.

It is the wairs of Weber.

That the musicianu play.

For falvest feet to dance to,

Over the way!

But draw the atomid to mo, so
That I can easily reach it.
Note the fire is not too low.
All I can not can't to morrow?
If the doctor thinks at best.
Nisst you leave me now' good night, thenth, that my hyain could rest?
It is still the waits of weber
That the numberians play,
For morrises hearts to dance to,
Over the way. You need not light the candle But draw the stand to me, a

How strange are the shadows, flitting Areund on the dusky wall! But the fire in in beart grows stranger And absorber than them all. Is that the town-clock striking? I think that it is to night My fewer will reach its criss; There are loom however till light There are long hours you till light.
Delicate cooling free
Are plenty this night in May
For little ted tips to toy with,
Over the way.

I wender if she loves me
is her trite, and I se poor!
Yet I year my life out for herWas that a step at the door!
It is only the might wind yising
With the waning meen:—Ah, me!
wish I could see it allumer
Through the deer old locust tree!
Drooped are the shadow recalls,
And low are the winds they say.
As the whilepeing waltrors pass then
Over the way.

Mother, at home, come, bless me?

Gen ret allege when your buy in pain.
Lours as not the tombe dy our ingers
(to cost his foverish brain?
Sing he for rest with the marant.
Of your lyran, with the hurant.
Of your lyran, with the help tane;
It have broken dreame! I heard it
Through this long, long afternoon.
Again that waits of Weber.
Nets brarts and feet to play,
Whitling and theilling and throbbing,
two the way.

I can not hear much longer;
I have great, great work to do.
Would I must win for the door ones.
Fance. How I wish I knew!
Persess, perhaps she would love me.
If she could but see the star.
That will one day shinn above me!
Ab. me!—'tis so very fat!
The soft white check is thathing.—
Is at often so hot in May:
Tall they only pasts goessip
Over the way?

Quilt and gray was the gloaming
The forehined upon the wall;
For the mercind day was breaking.
And the birds began to call,
But a face was changed in the shadows
Of the early, loccount dawn;
And a paice had ceased its threibbing.
And the farer all was gate.
But this hed was the waits of Weber,
And weary, that dawn in May,
The brarts and feet that dawced so,
Drug the way.

Impressive Politics-Religious Coremony Three Defeated Candidates Taking the Vail.

A correspondent of the New York Mercuri thus relates an impressive ceremony, lately participated in by several defauctionaries: A most impressive and solemn scene was resented recently, at the Cathedral of the Bleeding Confederacy, on the occasion of the taking of the vail by three young gentlemen: John C. Breckinridge, of Kentucky; John Bell, of Tennessee; and Stephen A. Douglas, of Hitnois.

These had been the gayest of the gay; but having learned, by bitter experience, that this world is all a flecting show, and that even the White House is only a whited sepulcher, they appealed very earnestly to their mammas to be allowed the pleasure of retir-ing forever from the fleeting show, and re-nouncing all claims to the whited sepulcher Which they were permitted to do.

which they were permitted to do.
The cathedral was hung with black and white, just now two very significant colors,
and when all was in readiness the novices
entered, preceded by Mother St. Fusion,
Superior of the Order of Decayed Politicians. The young gentlemen were dressed in blue dress-coats, gilt-buttoned, and lined with whitesatin throughout, black trowsers, white waistcoats, white neck ties, embroidered linen, and white kid gloves, each bearing a beautiful bouquet, principally composed of the Last Roses of Summer. The attire—a comwedding costume-was greatly admired, and set off the personal attractions of the young devotees most charmingly.

They took seats within the chancel in comwith several clergymen among whom observed the Rev. Father Tammany, Right Rev. Father Charles Ton, Rev. Father Richmond, and others. †James Bushanan, Archbishop of Lancaster-Wheatlands, officiated as Master of Ceremonies.

This venerable public functionary delivered an excellent discourse from the fol-" I am Abraham's rervant." - Genesis, 24,

The sermon, which was rather long, did not attract any very carnest attention from the audience. The ceremony over, the young gentlemen prostrated themselves before the Archeishop for several minutes, and on ing, read aloud the formula used by the rising, read aloud the formula used by the Order on taking the vail.

The Archbishop then interrogated them as to their voluntary renunciation of the desting show and the whited sepulcher. It was observed that they answered him very hesitatingly, and made some sour faces at the next ceremony, which consisted in clip-ping a small lock of hair from the forehead of each, to typify their formal retirement from the vanities of the world, and their continue of their position in the order.

This concluded, the postulants retired to an ante-room for a short time, during which the choir sang a very impressive medley of The young gentlemen now entered, hab-sted in the costume of the order—a long robe of suckcloth, well sprinkled with ashes, and trimmed with dry crusts and fish-scales;

and on the head, a vail of tears, J. B. then gave him his blessing, remark-ing to each in turn, "You're one of us now, air't you? How do you feet?"

air tyou? How do you feel?"
Master John Bell (assuming the name of Brother Ancient Fishlike), said, "I am content. The order is highly respectable."
Master John C. Breckinridge (assuming the name of Brother Used Up Early), said, "I want to be an Angel."
Master Stephen Douglas (the least of the three, assuming the name of Brother Squatter Sovereign), said, "I want to go to my ma!" and burst into tears.

and burst into tears.

The ceremonies being now concluded, the three young gentlemen who had entered the church apparently so full of life and hope, arrayed in the richest wedding costumes, cenarted in the humble habit of their order.

"Suc.' a Life!"

"Such is Life!" DISSECTION OF AN ALLIGATOR .- A late New Orleans paper speaking of dissection of different animals says;

The most interesting part of the Professor's lecture was the introduction of a semi-alive a ligator to the class—better known among the scientific as the Crocodilus Miscissippicasis. The object which was desired to be shown was the action of electricity upon the great nerves which give motion and ensation to the thornic organs. This was iemonstrated on this animal most thoroughly. demonstrated on this animal most thoroughly. The abdominal cavity and the superior motion of his body were laid upon with the imife without causing death, and you might take the beart of the reptile in your hand and yet see the polantion of it, and also see the peculiarities of its diaphonous condition. On application of the galvanic battery to the prenamo-gastric nerve, the heart almost immediately ceased its action, but upon its withdrawal, nature, though imposed upon by the Dector and his amistant, still asserted her sway, and the faithful still went on as if nothing bod happened. Taking it "all in all" it was a most singular and rare opportunity, both to the professional and non-professional men to witness a practical demonstration of the circulation and the force of the the of, which is ready ever seen either by students or professors.

Financial Affaire. The week opened quietly resterday, with moderate demand for Money, and a continued close market; the Banking-houses still preserving their rigid rules respecting Discounts, and granting no favors, except to a few particular customers.

All parties that want accommodation, and have not considerable balances in Bank, are compelled to seek the street to sell Paper, where it can not be disposed of, however good, better than 24@36 per cent, per ansum. The city and country accounts have been greatly reduced, but they are no lower now than they were two or three days ago, and the feeling of Third-street, if not better, is certainly no worse. Boston and New York Exchange was heavier yesterday, with a decidedly downward tendency, and though rates were nominally unchanged, some dealers were selling large amounts of $1,000 and upward at 114 premium. Indeed, there was no trouble in obtaining Bankers' signatures at that rate, though a few of the houses naked 134, as usual. No one was paying over 1, and many not more than % premium, for the best Cheeks that could be made. No doubt the general selling price to day will be 114. On Baltimore and Philadelphia, rates were irregular, and little was doing on either

New Orleans Exchange was in good request, with a very good supply at par@3 prem buying and %@1 prem. for undoubted checks; some houses refusing to purchase any other than Bank-signatures.

Gold was rather quiet, and though some houses were asking 2, others were selling freely at 11/2 prem.

The financial news from New York yesterday was favorable, Stocks advancing 1/263 per cent.

Fleur was unchanged here, with a light demand, good superfine being held at $4 25, though it could not be forced at $464 10. Extra ranged at $4 406 5 25. Whisky was in fair demand and firm, 1,700 brls, selling at 1460143/c. Wheat was in good demand with light receipts, and holders asked an advance of 5c. per bushel. Corn, Rye and Oats were firm, and Barley was dull. Sugar and Molasses were steady and Coffee was dull.

The demand for mess Pork fell off, and parcels packed last week were purchased at $14 50, and no buyers at that rate at the close of the market. Green Hams were in good demand. Hogs opened firm in the morning, and $5 50605 60 was paid for good porkers, but on 'Change the large number'. Molasses from $4 1005 21. Molasses from $4 1005 2 porkers, but on 'Change the large number offered for future delivery, and the decreased demand for mess Pork flattened the market, and buyers offered lower rates.

Saturday's Tribune observes respecting

Friday's New York Market: There was a cheerful feeling at the Stock There was a cheerful feeling at the Stock Exchange this morning, and the market had an improving tendency up to the close of the session, without marked activity and without excitement. State Stocks were considerably better, and the market was firmer also for Governments, of which $14,000 Fives, of '74, brought 90. The demand for Railway Bonds was more animated than for some time past, and brices were generally better. The largest was more animated than for some time past, and prices were generally better. The largest Share-dealings were in New York Central, Michigan Southern, Illinois Central, and Toledo, ell at improving quotations. There was no prominent feature in the operations, but the stronger and more hopeful tone de-veloped in the market for several days ap-peared still to have an ascendency. Private dispatches received during the session re-ported the resignation of Secretary Casa; but no impression was made upon the market until later in the day, when this political event was made the argument for a further enr demonstration.

Between the Boards the scarcity of Stocks was again very apparent, and the applicawas again very apparent, and the applications of borrowers were quite as numerous as ever. The large short lines seem to be rolling over from day to day in an uncomfortable way, but not at any serious loss to the operators, in the absence of movements for the rise, but the peril of the position is only averted by the political treuble. At the Second Board the market was hammered smartly by two or three of the leading bears and the second the leading bears. smartly by two or three of the leading boars, and prices fell off to a moderate extent under these fresh attacks. The basis of the move-ment is stated to be the receipt of disquiet-ing intelligence from Washington; but nothing definite, except the resignation of Mr. Cass and the intention of Mr. Douglas to make a coercive speech, was made known.

After the Board there was but little doing,
and the changes were unimportant.

day's Monetary matters:

Financially the view of the market to-day is decidedly good. The improvement in the tone of Money and Exchange affairs, noticed yesterday, has resulted in a larger busines in mercantile Paper and in Bills on England. The Banks, at their Discount sessions this morning, took a large proportion of their of ferlogs, in some instances all that was offered within Bank rule as to date, and outside of Bank improved Currency was given to first-class Paper at from 12 to 18 per cent.

In Exchange the operations were much heavier in amount than for several mails just. Some of the English shirpers of Gold by the Europa caused their correspondents here to be advised by telegraph from Halifax of the amount on board, with a view to the purchase of return Exchange in advance of the amount colour, with a view to the purchase of return Exchange in advance of the samual colours, the colour part of the samual colours of return Exchange in advance of the samual colours, the colour part of the samual colours, the colour part of the samual colours, the colour part of the samual colours of return Exchange in advance of the samual colours, the colour part of the samual colours, the colour part of the samual colours of the samual colours of return Exchange in advance of the samual colours of return Exchange in advance of the samual colours of return Exchange in advance of the samual colours of return Exchange in advance of the samual colours of return Exchange in advance of the samual colours of return Exchange in advance of the samual colours of return Exchange in advance of the samual colours. MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL, sales, is about one per cent, or on Merchant we quote at 1033 ($104; sales cleaning at 1046) we quote at 103% (6) 105, askes closing at 104 (6) 105; the latter at 101 (6) 104 per cent. The greatest good is accomplished by this improvement in the Currency for Merchant Bills drawn against Cotton from the South or in transitu, and Grain and Flour from this port. The shipment of Bullion to this side by the Europa appears to have been mainly on speculation, as an Exchange operation. The next receipts, by the Atlantic and Persia, will probably be on orders sent from this side about 17th or 21st November. Yesterday's Louisville Courier observer respecting Saturday's Provision Market: There was a better feeling manifested in the Provision Market to-day, owing to the favorable news received from abroad. The demand for mess Pork was larger to-day than for some time; 800 brls, were sold at $15 cash. The market closed firm, with an unward tendency in prices. sto cash. The market closed firm, with an upward tendency in prices. Holders were less anxious to sell, and were more buyers than sellers at that price. Large lots could be sold at that price, had packers been willing to sell. There is a small order demand for Bacon, with sales at 8, 10 and 12c. for Shoulders, rib and clear-rib Sides. There is nothing doing in green or bulk Meats. There is no change to note in the market for Hogs. There were but few offering and for Hogs. There were but few offering, and we heard of no transactious. The outside price at which they could be sold was $5 25 net for heavy. The packing season is fast drawing to a close, and a number of the houses have aiready quit operations, while others have nearly fluished. We did not learn the exact number killed to-day, but we are able to say that the number slaughtered around the Falls this season will fall short of 200,000 head, which will be a falling off of over 60,000 head as compared with last year, and the consequence is that the quantity of Pork and Bacon packed this year will be much less than last year. much less than last year.
